

BEST PRACTICES FOR SPRING 2022

CHILDREN'S, YOUTH AND FAMILY MINISTRY

Public Health restrictions may have been removed, or significantly eased, but COVID-19 is still present in our communities and continues to spread.

These best practices, shaped by guidance from Bishop Sandra, offer ways that we can continue to take care to minimize the spread of COVID-19 and other viruses, and to do our best to care for the children, youth, and families that we are called to serve.

GET OUTSIDE!

The risk of transmitting any illness is decreased by being outside, so as much as possible, run your programs out in creation!

MAKE SPACE FOR ALL COMFORT LEVELS

Different folks have different levels of what they are ok with and what they aren't - make sure you plan for that. High contact games might not be the right choice right now - but tossing a ball around a circle might work!

PLAN FOR MASKS & DISTANCE INDOORS

Masks are still strongly recommended by public health, even if they are not required. Physical distancing isn't always required either. Our suggestion for best practice is to plan for both whenever you are indoors.

MAKE THE MOST OF DISTANCE

Instead of feeling limited by distancing requirements, think of ways to make it fun. Play games where distance adds challenge, mark off a distanced space on the floor for each participant - get creative and have fun!

STAY HOME IF YOU'RE UNWELL

This is the norm most everywhere these days, but it's important to be explicit about it in your ministries. For participants and volunteers - if you aren't well, just stay home.

A COUPLE OF TIPS:

HOLD YOUR BOUNDARIES

Whatever guidelines or practices you choose to adopt and follow, hold tightly to them. If you are loosey goosey and sometimes are strict and other times let things slide, it will make other feel like they don't need to be taken that seriously.

CHECK IN WITH YOUR PEOPLE

Building on making space for all comfort levels - ask people where they are at and what they are comfortable with. Ministry is fundamentally about relationship, so connecting with young people and their parents to make sure you honour where everyone is at is key.

KEEP YOUR FINGER ON THE PULSE OF WHAT'S HAPPENING LOCALLY

You might not be able to see exact update of what's happening with COVID in your community, but the more you are able to stay aware of what's happening in your context, the more responsive you can be in terms of the risk management measures you adopt, or the kinds of activities you include in the ministries that are happening.
